

ASQ-3 and ASQ:SE-2 Child Care Provider Training

Learn how to screen the social and emotional development of infants and toddlers!

TRAINING DETAILS

The ASQ-3 and the ASQ:SE-2 are accurate, family-friendly ways to screen children for developmental delays. Participants will learn how to use the screening tools in their child care setting.

DID YOU KNOW?

Screening detects developmental delays in children—and also provides an opportunity to celebrate developmental milestones. Screening young children is an effective, efficient way for professionals to gauge developmental progress and determine meaningful next steps—at a time when action can have the greatest impact: during a child's first years of life. Because social-emotional and developmental delays in children can be subtle and can occur in children who appear to be developing typically, most children who would benefit from intervention are not identified until after they start school (agesandstages.com).
